

Jill Thompson <jill@cowichanwatershedboard.ca>

World Water Day Podcast!

Danielle Paydli <danielle@freshwateralliance.ca>
To: Danielle Paydli <danielle@freshwateralliance.ca>
Bcc: jill@cowichanwatershedboard.ca

23 March 2022 at 16:26

Hello Our Water BC team!

Yesterday, in celebration of World Water Day, and to mark the one year anniversary of the Freshwater Stream podcast (a collaboration between the Freshwater Alliance and Watershed Watch Salmon Society), we launched a brand new episode. I talk to four guests who help listeners envision BC's potential future with a watershed security strategy and fund.

Guests are Mayor Toni Boot from the District of Summerland; Brodie Guy, CEO of Coast Funds; Russell Myers Ross from Yunesit'in First Nation; and Coree Tull, co-chair of the BC Watershed Security Coalition. I hope you have time to give it a listen.

<https://www.freshwateralliance.ca/s2e3>

Also, I have a small favour to ask. One of the most effective ways to get our podcast into more ears is for people to rate, review and subscribe to it. So, in the spirit of supporting Watershed Security in all the ways you do, would you please take a few minutes to visit your favourite podcast platform, search for the Freshwater Stream, hit subscribe, and then give it a rating. If you have time, a review really boosts the visibility as well so more people can hear what is possible in BC if we invest in our watersheds.

THANK YOU!!!

--

Danielle Paydli

BC Program Director

Canadian Freshwater Alliance, a project of MakeWay.

Pronouns: she/her

Website: www.freshwateralliance.ca

Facebook: www.facebook.com/freshwateralliance / <https://www.facebook.com/ourwaterbc>

The Freshwater Alliance builds, connects and supports freshwater constituencies across Canada.

Gratefully acknowledging that I live, work and write from the traditional territories of the St'zuminus First Nation.